A dowager or duchess arrayed in gorgeous silk, satin or velvet attire, with the complement of green gloves and yellow ribbons, and shod with broad, heavy, bose-fitting boots, is hardly a pleasant, though it is a constantly recurring, picture of taste in dress among the wealthy classes in English hig. Mrs. Siddons will not be charged with an over-strained regard for the Yankee, or a wish to favor them at the expense of her own countrywomen. In thus placing the servant and the duchess in contrast she was simply emphasizing a truism which was less a fact at that time than it is at the present hour. For among all civilized people the English women are the most ill-dreased, and seem to lack the natural gifts, the self-reliance and shility of choice and selection which are the inborn attributed of American women. An English nursery set off against a nursery in this country may be taken as a type in miniature of the taste in dress and all that the term involves of the differences which characterizes the women of the two nations. In this country little girls find constant satisfaction and congenial employment in arranging and adorning their doll's apparel. Left to their own intuitions, and hampered by little cr no pupilage from their elders, it must be owned that the taste and ingenuity which they display are often simply wonderful. An English lady who passed thirty years of her life in her native land, and who has lived in this city half of that time, once said.—"The homes of American girls, so far as I am familiar with them, are schools of art in dress adornment, and whether their taste and skill are natural gifts, or acquired by observation, I do not pretend to say, but there is nothing to compare with it in our homes in England." Consistent with this admission is the almost universal tone of the English press and of most travelers who visit our shores from other lands. That English women study comfort and provide themselves with rich fabrics and FLORIDA lizards are said to possess, in a remarkable degree, the power of changing their color at will, the process occupying about a quarter of a minute. Knee Breeches.

We devoutly hope that the above style of garment will not become the proper thing in dress. Nature has not specially designated us as the proper figure to fill out a pair of knee breeches, and an all-wise Providence did not select us as the gent to make a clease fitting wordsche man to wear a close-fitting wardrobe.
This is the only striking difference be tween ourself and the lamented Wash-tween ourself and the lamented Washington, deceased.

In the first place, it is a moral impossibility for us to maintain a friendly teeling and a close relation between our knee breeches and stockings. A garter that would be tight at the knee generally slides down over the concave call and hangs on the instep like the interfering machine that a trotting horse fering machine that a trotting horse wears. The garter has always been a mystery, a snare, and a delusion to us.

Their natural or cultivated good taste, which includes the lines of beauty, which Mr. Beecher made himself inerry over recently, is generally all-sufficient in doubt and emergency. Their "glory" is to dress tastefully and becomingly. Their "hallejuah" is the acclaim of a successfully consummated purpose.—New York Evening Post. It does not match our complexion.

Once we were knee breeches and long white stockings at a masquerade. Later we took off the mask because it was not and uncomfortable, and because it was a hollow mockery. When a man has a knee joint like the sheet-iron elbow of an old-fashioned stovepipe and a calf like a lead pencil, it is useless for him to mask his face. him to mask his face. Knee breeches are made for men who

Canada and the Queen.

I remember a curious incident that happened in Canada in connection with the British national anthem. In one of my lectures I describe the pathetic abandonment of state ceremony at Sandringham, while the Prince of Wales lay suck there of what threatened so formidably to be a fatal illness. The audience listened spellbound. I uttered the sentence "The Queen strolled up and down in front of the house, unattended, in the brief interval she allowed are resthetic, and who walk a good deal. Sedentary men either get too fat or too lean, and they do not create a good impression in this style of garment.

It looks out of place and sui generis, as it normal neess and stapendous randous it does not fit this peculiar garb. It looks out of place and sui yeneris, as it were.

Another reason for strong opposition on the part of the press relative to the knee pants is the fact that the ladies, who are now rapidly adopting the modern changes in men's apparel, will, of course, take up with this one. We do queen!" The audience promptly stood queen!" The audience promptly stood queen! The audience promptly stood queen!" The audience promptly stood queen! who are now rapidly adopting the mod-ern changes in men's apparel, will, of course, take up with this one. We do not feel, as a husband and father, like enlarging upon this aspect of the mat-ter. We never can write about any subject when we are in pain. We must still this heartache before we can proceed. To resume: We deem it bad enough for mankind to wear pantaloons that bag at the knee when we sit down, without embracing a garment which will open at the knee like a Soldene smile when we winning the first prize. THE SCORE. Below is a statement of the places arned by the contesting horses and the building, on Cemetery street, is nearly completed. It will be entirely enclosed to-day or on Monday. Mr. Rogan informs as that the expense of putting up the structure thus far foots up $1800, and that the first payment $650 has been made, as per agreement, but to complete the basement and main audience room ready for use will require an outlay altogether of about $2500 or $2800. Part of this sum has been already subscribed by generous citizens, and a portion of the amount is yet to be collected. The congregation will have to have more outside help to put them out of debt and give them a good start in their efforts to exert an influence among the colored people for good in our community. No doubt many well-to-do citizens will cheerfully give of their means in aid of this new and handsome house of worship. Members of the congregation, Mr. Rogan and others will call upon our people in a few days. They need only a few hundred dollars more, and they feel confident of raising the necesary amount.

He ness in that city. had not read the description of the stolen horse and thief carefully, otherwise all the trouble and expense might have been saved. Evidently Dakota postmasters and officers hunger for $150 rewards.

On the trip to Dakota Mr. Lake traveled in a northwesterly direction through the state of Iowa. He says he saw three hundred miles of the finest corn man ever gazed upon. Arriving at Eagan, Dakota, he found that trains did not go from that point to Madison, except on every other day. He struck Eagan on the wrong day and so instead of waiting for the triweekly train, Mr. Lake reached the town by taking another road and driving to his destination with a friend in a buggy.

BULLDOZING AGENTS. Macon County Farmers Swindled by Foreign Lightning Rod Agents.

Mr. John H. Sleeter, whose farm is less than two miles west of Boody, in this county, paid us a call this afternoon and indicated fully the manner in which R. F. Ford and J. R. Smith, agents for the "Northwestern Lightning Rod Company," of 391 and 393, South Halated street, Chicago, 1ll., had swindled him in a way peculiar to themselves by succeeding in compelling him to sign a note for $352.54 for putting up lightning rods, the contract cost of which in the beginning, was to be about $20. It appears that on Aug. 3, R. E. Ford called at Sleeter's place and after explaining his business, got Mr. Sheeter to sign a contract to pay 671/2 cents a foot for putting up 80 feet of rod, which, with the deductions volunteered by Ford, would cost the farmer about $20. Ford left with the contract and said that his man would be along the next day and put up the rods. On yesterday, August ith, J. R. Smith called at the Sleeter farm and commenced putting up the rods. And here the swindle came in. Instead of complying with the contract, Smith put up about 495 feet of rods. Smith went ahead and when he had flu-ished he figured up the cost of the work and presented a note calling for $352.61 to Mr. Sleeter for him to sign. This Mr. Sleeter promptly refused to do, whereupon Smith threatened prosecution, and declared that he would not leave the place until Sleeter signed the note. He also loudly declared that he would at once put more rods on all of Sleeter's buildings if he didn't sign the note. Mr. Sleeter states that in order to get rid of the swindler, and prevent him from increasing the expense, which was then beyond all reason, he signed the note. To-day Mr. Sleeter is in Decafur with the papers obtained from the two bull-dozing agents, and has employed Bunn & Park, lawyers, to investigate the 2 p. m.

matter. Mr. Sleeter gives notice in another column warning the public not to negotiate for the note signed by him. We learn also from a reliable source that representatives from this same Chiengo company, whose managers are Gil-espie & Co., attempted to play the same swindling game on a brother of Mr. Sleeter, Thomas Brown, Mr. Blankenskip and several other farmers in the vienity ed in this work welcomed. Boody, but they saw through the scheme before they could be induced to sign the notes, and the agents departed to look for easar victims.

The above is sufficient to warn all our readers not to have unything to do with the so-called Northwestern Lightning Red Company, nor any company of that kind. If the conduct of the bulldozing agents named is properly represented, and we have no reason to doubt the statements of Mr. Sleeter, it is a wonder the fellows got out of Blue Mound township without being turred and feathered and ridden on a rail. THERE Was a joyous and double surprise party and birthday celebration at the comfortable residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Hart, on East Main street. It was the anniversary of the birth of Mr. Hart and his eight-year-old son Harry. A fine suppor was discussed and all participated in a variety of games. Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Musgrove, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Henkle, Mr. and Mrs. John Trainer, Dr. and Mrs. Sparks, Mrs. M. M. Stafford, Mrs. Joseph Bentley, Mrs. Vennigerholtz, Mrs. Williams, Jennie McCoy, of Oakley: Mrs. Reed, of Bement; Misses Bessie Henkle, Cora Shellabarger, Carrie Kuny, Belle Vennigerholz, Jessie Hart, Corinne Musgrove and Mary Sparks, and Masters Jimmie Stafford, Bobby Bentley, Frankie Williams, George Hart, Wallace Holland, Arthur Rose, Fred Musgrove, Frank Hays and Willie Me-

After such a certain instance of phiological blundering as this, I for one am not inclined to place great faith in statements. clined to place great faith in statements as that made by the Figlish Chronicle about Chichester, which it attributes to about Chichester, which it attributes to the mythical South baxon King Cissa Whatever Cissanceaster may mean, it seems to me much more likely that it represents another case of double nam-ing, for though the Roman town was commonly known as Respum, that is

other noman names have been mis lusively English form, or have been mis taken for memorials of the English conquest. The Roman town was known as Durobrava, which does not in the least resemble Rochester, and, what is more, Bæda distinctly tells in that Justus, the first Enshop of the West Kentish See, was consecrated "in the city of Dorubrevi, which the English call Hrofass ceaster, from one of its former masters, by name Hrof." If this were all we know about it, we should be told that Bæda clearly described the town as being called Hrofa chester, from an English conquerer Hrof, and that to contradict this clear statement of an early writer was presumptuous or absurd Fortunately, however, we have the clearest possible proof that Hrof never existed, and that he was a pure creation of Bæda's own simple etymological guesswork.

and that he was a pure creation of fireds's own simple etymological guesswork. King Alfred clearly knew better, for he omitted this wild derivation from his English translation. The valuable fragment of a map of Roman Britain preserved for use in the mediaval transcript program as the "Pautinger Tablea" sats known as the "Peutinger Tables," sets down Rochester as Rotibis Hence it is pretty certain that it must have had two liternative names, of which the other was Durobrive Rotibus would easily commonly known as Regnum, that is clearly a mere administrative form, derived from the tribal name of the Regni Considering that the same veracious Chronicle derives Portsmouth, the Roman Portus, from an imaginary Tentonic invader, Port, and commits it self to other wild statements of the same sort, I don't think we need greatly hesitate about rejecting its authority in these earlier and conjectural portions.
